2009 Court Alcohol and Drug Annual Meeting

The time has come for the 2009 Annual Meeting for court alcohol and drug program judges and personnel. This year's conference presents a spectrum of learning opportunities to provide both personal and professional development and growth, with topics ranging from holistic health and self-empowerment to complex neuroscience and mental health issues. There is something for everyone – as always, this meeting is open to all court alcohol and drug program supervising judges, alcohol and drug program staff, and others interested in developing a new alcohol and drug program.

I am particularly excited to share with you that two nationally renowned and dynamic speakers, criminal justice expert Dr. Mario Paparozzi and therapist Mr. Robert Weiss, will present keynote addresses. Dr. Paparozzi, past president of the American Probation and Parole Association, will present an operational paradigm for criminal justice agencies combating the “war on drugs.” Mr. Weiss will engage participants in discussions ranging from how narcissism can be a key component to understanding a client's addiction, to the dual relationship between alcohol and drug abuse and sexual addiction. We will also have New York City Judge Robert Russell discuss the various mental health and substance use issues that can affect veterans, particularly as our programs have seen a rise in clients who have served in the military.

As you review the session offerings, you will see that we are committed to giving program personnel and judges a national perspective of what is going on in the field of criminal justice and addictions, while remaining attuned to local issues. That is why I hope you will plan to attend this year's Annual Meeting in Indianapolis, March 11-12, 2009, at the Marriot Conference Center and Hotel.

I look forward to seeing you there!

Jane A. Seigel
Executive Director

10:45 a.m.-12:00 p.m.

What if Love Never Comes: Narcissism and Addiction

Robert Weiss, Director, Sexual Recovery Institute

Participants will learn how narcissism can be a key component to understanding a client's addiction. Mr. Weiss will explain some of the psychological and emotional characteristics commonly exhibited by individuals with narcissistic traits.

LUNCHEON (Provided)

12:00 p.m.-1:00 p.m.

BREAKOUT SESSIONS

1:15 p.m.-2:45 p.m.

Veterans and Addiction

Hon. Robert Russell, New York City Court

The various mental health and substance use issues that can affect veterans will be discussed in this session. The judge will provide strategies based on his years presiding over a "Veterans Treatment Court" that participants can incorporate into the services they provide clients who are veterans.

The Neuroscience of Addiction

Dr. Andrew Chambers, Assistant Professor of Psychiatry, Indiana University School of Medicine

Dr. Chambers will explain the impact impaired brain functioning can have in an addicted client's life, and discuss how it affects compliance.

Climbing the Rough Side of the Mountain

Harvey Alston, Best, Inc.

This highly interactive session will provide a variety of educational experiences based on key team leadership principles designed to reshape lost abilities, rebuild hope, confidence, self-respect, and desire.

Continued

Holistic Health: Taking Care of the Caretaker

Neva Hagedorn, Director of Human Capital Development, Workforce Inc.

Ms. Hagedorn will define how the holistic health philosophy connects physical, emotional, mental and spiritual health. Participants will then be encouraged to participate in mind, body, and spiritual practices that can benefit both themselves and the clients they serve.

Problem-Solving Courts: What are they?

Hon. Robert Russell, Buffalo, New York City Court and Panel Participants

Participants will learn how problem-solving courts, such as drug courts, reentry courts, and mental health courts, benefit communities. Judge Russell will also explain what characteristics differentiate substance use offenders needing intensive supervision in a drug court setting rather than a court alcohol and drug program.

Untangling the Web: Sex and Pornography Addiction

Robert Weiss, Director, Sexual Recovery Institute

The comorbid relationship between sexual addiction and alcohol or drug addiction will be examined in this session. Mr. Weiss will also debunk the myths surrounding sexual addiction, explain basic diagnostic and treatment principles for the disorder, and highlight the increasing prevalence of internet pornography addiction.

Understanding the Minds of Addicts and Abusers: What Courts, Alcohol and Drug Abuse Counselors, and Probation Officers Need to Know

Dr. Barbara L. Cohen, Clinical Neuropsychologist

This session, building upon a basic knowledge of addictions, will focus on the problems in thinking associated with individuals with drug and alcohol abuse problems and the relationship to judgment, decision-making, and behavior. Dr. Cohen will also identify treatment interventions for individuals with specific atypical cognitive functioning.

Understanding State Funding for Addictions and Mental Health Services

Debra Herrmann and Eric Scott, Division of Mental Health and Addiction

Participants will learn about the "Hoosier Assurance Plan" (HAP), which is the main method by which the Division of Mental Health and Addiction (DMHA) funds community mental health services. Participants will also learn about other DMHA resources such as the "Access to Recovery Program" which provides vouchers for addictions treatment.

The Seemingly Intractable War on Drugs: The Need for a New Paradigm in Criminal Justice

Dr. Mario Paparozzi, Chair, Department of Sociology and Criminal Justice, University of North Carolina at Pembroke

Dr. Paparozzi will discuss how the "war on drugs" campaign has been sustained for over three decades, but is not yet over. He will then explain why criminal justice agencies need to embrace a new paradigm in order for progress to be sustained in the continuing war on drugs.

BREAK

10:15 a.m.-10:30 a.m.

BREAKOUT SESSIONS

10:30 a.m.-12:00 p.m.

Understanding Judicial Decision-Making

Hon. Mark Stoner, Marion Superior Court, Hon. Frances Gull, Allen Superior Court, and Hon. Michael Rush, Whitley Superior Court

Back by popular demand, this session will provide participants the opportunity to have a question and answer session with court alcohol and drug program supervising judges, as well as learn about how judges decide and make recommendations in particular legal situations or cases. The session will also provide insight into additional judicial issues such as court management, participating in the political process, and sentencing guidelines.

Merging Criminal Justice Techniques with Addiction Intervention

Dr. Mario Paparozzi, Chair, Department of Sociology and Criminal Justice, University of North Carolina at Pembroke

Participants will learn what criminal justice techniques are effective in managing the short-term risk of addicted persons. Impediments to meaningful integration of criminal justice techniques with addiction intervention will also be discussed.

An Evidence-Based Practice Approach to Opiate Replacement Therapy

Dr. Eugene Somoza, Cincinnati Addiction Research Center

Dr. Somoza will explain how opiate replacement therapies, such as treatment with Methadone, can be an effective and proven intervention for addicted clients. Participants will also learn about the legal and practice regulations governing this treatment option.

Mental Health and Addiction: Common Case Management

Michael Trent, Forensic Mental Health Coordinator, Marion County Public Defender Agency

Building upon a participant's basic understanding of dual diagnosis and general mental health disorders, this session will provide participants with effective case management tools for mentally ill offenders with substance abuse issues.
